Half Session Over and Little Accomplished

amendments are submitted at the same time the general public gets all tangled up and trips over the mass and kills the whole business just to be on the safe side. They would prefer that the prohibition amendment be the only one submitted to the ratification of the voters in November, 1940.

The various joint investigating committees are now leaving the capital and will be gone the greater part of next week. For this reason it is expected that there will be a decided lull about the state house for the next week or ten days. The Everglades drainage work, the state insane asylum, the state reform school and various other state institutions are to be looked into thoroughly. There is not much sensation about these investigations to start with, anyhow, as one of their objects is to look into the needs of the various institutions and works.

STOKES MAKING RECORD.

One of the most important steps taken by the house during the week was when Representative Stokes, the brilliant young member from Escambia, shoved his loan shark bill through in a manner which was nothing short of brilliant. From the record this twenty-two year old legislator is making this session and from what is heard from over Escambia way there is a strong probability of his occupying the seat in the senate now occupied by Senator Beard at the next session. To be fair to him it should be stated that he has at the present time no especial political ambitions. But the people of west Florida are not going to let him pursue the peaceful tenor of a practicing attorney.

The Stokes measure will doubtless be passed by the senate as there is little or no opposition to the measure in that body. The only real opposition that developed on the floor of the house was from Duval county. But the way Stokes pulled his gloves off and took hold of the arguments advanced from that county sent his bill through a whizzing. The vote was fifty-three to four.

CONSERVATION OF FORESTS.

Senator Hosford has an important measure before the senate which would be of great importance to the state if passed. It is planned in the interests of the conservation of the forest resources of the state. The bill creates the office of state forester and gives him the control of state forest preserves which may be created by the state under certain conditions.

The state forester will have to be a man whose ability is certified to by the United States forestry service and he will be expected to give advice and aid in stocking timber areas where private parties desire such help. The measure is an important one and will receive careful consideration from the legislature as it is a recognized fact that Florida's rich timber resources are being tapped in a wasteful manner that bodes no good for the future good of the state. Steps in the direction of intelligent conservation of the state's timber are badly needed.

The financial problems of the state will have to be fought out from now on and their settlement will become increasingly important as the days go by. And there is going to be some tight trimming this time. There is a bad looking deficit and to get over it without increasing taxation to an unpleasant degree will require the exercise of most rigid economy.

Under bills suggested by Governor Gilchrist and now before the legislature the state will be given the right to mine and sell phosphate from the beds lying in the waters belonging to the state. It is believed that this can be made an appreciable source of revenue in the course of a few years. Another bill provides that a certain amount shall come out of the convict lease fund for the maintenance of the state insane asylum.

The address delivered by Governor Broward last night upon invitation of the house was surrounded with incidents that will make it an occasion that will always be looked back to with pleasure by those who were present. Clear cut, forceful, honest, his arguments were every one driven home with solid blows that told.

Every question asked him was replied to readily and was fully explained. The ovation that was tendered him when he was escorted into the hall of the house of representatives attested his popularity.

Representative "Jeems" Alexander crowned himself with glory by the manner in which he presided over the committee of the whole during the speech. He insisted on order also. It was nearly 1 o'clock this morning before the house finally adjourned. There was much parliamentary play at the last and that killed a lot of time. The winding up of the midnight session was not without its humor.

Speaker Farris was on the floor as he had been outside much of the evening. When the roll was called on the adoption of the MacWilliams resolution of censure he asked to be excused, but Representative Roberson of Suwannee refused to allow the unanimous consent necessary to excuse a member from the roll call vote.

"In that case, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask what will happen if I refuse to vote?" queried Mr. Farris. "Under the rules the sergeant at arms will be required to place you under arrest," replied Speaker Pro Tem Stokes.

"And supposing I simply allow myself to be placed under arrest?" queried Mr. Farris further.

But he didn't wait for a reply but voted. Explaining that he wasn't acquainted with the facts in the case very well, as he had been out of Tallahassee two or three days, he voted against the resolution. And the sergeant at arms was saved the trouble of placing the popular speaker under arrest.

ALL HOPE LOST.

All hope of creating the office of pardon attorney was lost when the house killed the Neely bill creating that office this week.

It was an almost unanimous vote and therefore decisive. This legislature is trying to economize and it's pretty hard to create a new job as a result. There is rather a sentiment towards cutting out a few existing jobs.

One of the most deserving matters before the legislature and one, in fact, against which no arguments that will hold water can be brought, bear the measures now before the two houses providing for an appropriation of $30,000 for the payment of the Tampa State Fair certificates. The appropriation was made by the last legislature. The fair was held in good faith. Thousands of people entered exhibits and many scattered all over the state were awarded premiums. These premiums have never been paid because the appropriation has never been made available by the state officials.

The present measures propose to appropriate the amount directly out of the general revenue fund and to thus secure the payment of the premium certificates at as early a date as possible.

CHARGES BY L'ENGLE.

Something of a ripple was caused by the communications received from Claude L'Engle in which he asserted that he, a citizen of the state, was refused access to certain public books in the office of Comptroller Croom and that the comptroller let out certain printing which he, as state printer, should have received at that time under the terms of the state printing contract which he held. In the house the matter was turned over to the two judiciary committees to investigate jointly.

Twenty-five more days ends the session. And the members and everybody else concerned are beginning to look longingly at the calendar every day when the day's session begins. But twenty-five days will slide by quick and then the fun of explaining to the constituents why he voted so and so on such a measure and why he didn't get such a measure through will be the next thing on the program for the distinguished legislator who has the honor to be a member of either house.

381, Dayton, authorizing commissioners of state institutions to sell timber in waters of state.

382, Harris, for regulation of contagious disease in live stock.

Senator Beard moved to recess until noon to accept invitation of the house to hear U. S. Senator H. D. Morley address the house.

The senate resumed at 12 o'clock with nineteen members present.

Senator Broome moved that a committee be appointed to thank Senator Morley for his able address. Adopted.

President Hudson appointed Senators Broome, Harris and Miller.

Local bills were then taken up as follows:

NOT DRUGS Food did it.

After using laxative and cathartic medicines from childhood a case of chronic and apparently incurable constipation yielded to the scientific food, Grape-Nuts, in a few days.

"From early childhood I suffered with such terrible constipation that I had to use laxatives continuously going from one drug to another and suffering more or less all the time."

"A prominent physician whom I consulted told me the muscles of the digestive organs were partially paralyzed and could not perform their work without help of some kind, so I have tried at different times about every laxative and cathartic known, but found no help that was at all permanent. I had finally become discouraged and had given my case up as hopeless when I began to use this pre-digested food, Grape-Nuts."

"Although I had not expected this food to help my trouble, to my great surprise Grape-Nuts digested immediately from the first and in a few days I was convinced that this was just what my system needed."

"The bowels performed their functions regularly and I am now completely and permanently cured of this awful trouble."

"Truly the power of scientific food must be unlimited." "There's a Reason."

By Associated Press. Chattanooga, Tenn., May 8.—Louis Strang and George Dewitt were the star drivers in the automobile races at Olympia park track today. Strang appeared with one arm in a sling and

It was scheduled to go fifty miles, but was cut to ten. All local cars were out of commission by slight accidents, and for five miles it was a close race between Strang and Dewitt. At this stage Strang's car suffered an accident and Dewitt took the lead.

REHAD EFFENDI

Rehad Effendi, the new sultan of Turkey, is a weaker character than Abdul Hamid. For years—in fact, during the greater part of his life—he has been virtually a prisoner in his palace. It was not until Abdul Hamid was forced to recognize the constitution that he took any cognizance of his brother other than to keep spies about him. Under the Moslem law the sultan's brother next of age is the heir to the throne. Rehad Effendi was born in Constantinople in 1844.
